Advice From Former Student - Pheobe left in 2020, please see below what she has gone on to do and her advice to current students
Hello, my name is Phoebe Davies and I attended CCHSG through secondary and Sixth Form. I left in 2020 and went straight to the University of Exeter to study Biological Sciences. I am absolutely loving my time there, expanding my breadth and depth of biological knowledge whilst learning to live independently and making lots of new friends. As part of my degree, I opted to complete a placement year, I have managed to secure a position with the UK Health and Security Agency who tackle biological threats to the UK. I am super excited to commence this in September as it will allow me to a) work alongside some really cool people and b) apply theoretical Biology to real world applications using skills and knowledge I have accumulated throughout my education.
Although I am not sure what specific project I will be working on, it will involve plenty of lab work and subsequent analysis on a specific pathogenic microorganism. I would thoroughly recommend to all students that they should maximise their involvement in extracurricular activities, it is essential to universities and future employers that you can evidence your skill set and extracurriculars provide the perfect opportunity for that. Whether that is being part of the Student Voice/Head Student team, competing in a sport, helping run a society or even just participating in one. Any opportunity to build upon key skills such as responsibility, organisation and teamwork will be vital in the future combined with success in your academic studies.
I would also encourage interests outside of your academic ventures, employers and universities like to know the kind of person their prospective candidate is in order to determine if you fit the institutions culture.
Wishing you all good luck in whatever you decide to do!
